Introduction

This report presents statistics compiled from the Alberta Bureau of Statistics' Pay and Benefits Survey conducted annually in September. These preliminary data are based on early returns of the survey forms. Final and complete survey results are published each spring in Alberta Pay and Benefits. The brief descriptions that follow should be noted before using the data tables. If more detailed survey-related information is of interest, readers are encouraged to examine the annual publication, which contains full explanations of methodology, survey coverage, etc.

Acknowledgements

Sincere appreciation and gratitude is extended to all businesses for their indulgence in providing the statistics necessary for the preparation of this report.

Survey Coverage

All industry groups except fishing, trapping and farming are surveyed, including governments and public institutions. Generally, the survey covers all firms with twenty or more employees and a sample of firms with fewer than twenty employees. The survey, in total, collects information for over 500 different types of work and skill levels, although only about 200 are included in this preliminary report.

Confidentiality of the Data

The survey is conducted under the authority of the Statistics Bureau Act, Chapter S-22, Revised Statutes of Alberta, 1980, which sets out confidentiality guidelines to prevent disclosure of information pertaining to an individual establishment. In addition, minimum reporting levels have been set to ensure the pay rate statistics are reasonably representative. The resulting publication criteria are:

- pay rates must be provided for at least three establishments and for at least fifteen employees;
- for each occupation, no single establishment may account for more than 75 percent of the employees; and
- for each occupation, no two establishments may account for more than 90 percent of the employees.

Pay Rate Statistics

The preliminary report provides total provincial pay rate statistics by occupation. Since the report is based on partial survey returns, there are insufficient data to provide accurate statistics by the level of detail available in the annual publication. Comparisons of the preliminary and final statistics in past years revealed that at the total provincial level the preliminary data are rarely revised more than 10 percent for the final publication.

For each occupation, the number of employees represented, the number of reporting firms, the average and median pay rate, and the 1st and 9th deciles are provided. The 1st and 9th deciles are presented to give readers an indication of the range of pay reported while at the same time suppressing the extreme lows and highs. The final column reports the applicable pay period, which is the most common one reported. The following abbreviations are used to report the period:

A:	annual	M:	monthly
B:	bi-weekly	S:	semi-monthly
D:	daily	W:	weekly
H:	hourly

The rates of pay reported are for full-time employees and exclude any overtime payments.

Explanatory Notes

Occupations are listed in alphabetical order by the general occupational classification. For example, word processing operators are found under "operator, word processor."

The occupation classifications used are derived for the most part from the Canadian Classification and Dictionary of Occupations (CCDO) manual. Detailed occupational descriptions, as provided in the annual report, will be provided upon request.
